

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An apparatus for finely adjusting the input capacitance of a semiconductor device and a method of fabricating the apparatus are disclosed. The invention adjusts finely the input capacitance without increasing a layout area of the device by using a capacitor constructed with a poly layer/device isolation layer/P-type substrate. The poly layer is formed on an unnecessary space provided by the device isolation layer under an input pad.